Asbestos removal sectors

Due to the wealth of experience Omega has gained over years at the forefront of the asbestos removal industry, the company is committed to offering a bespoke service to clients across all sectors.

As asbestos can be found in any building built before the year 2000, it is vitally important to employ a contractor with a high level of specialist knowledge in all areas, to protect the safety of those involved.

When working with Omega, clients will feel confident that the work carried out will be specifically tailored to their exact needs, guaranteeing minimal disruption. The company will draw on its extensive knowledge of that particular environment to ensure the job is completed to the highest standard.

Throughout our history, we have worked in the commercial, healthcare, education, social housing, retail, construction and demolition, central government and leisure sectors – making the company a leading industry expert.
